

18. I am Life

Jesus died on Good Friday. The soldiers took the body down from the cross and a man called Joseph asked the governor if he could bury Jesus. Joseph took some balm and cloth and wrapped Jesus in the cloth before putting him in the tomb. The religious leaders were not very happy. They went to the governor and said, "This Jesus once said that he will rise up from the dead. We think that his followers will come and steal his body and then everyone will start to believe that Jesus is alive again. Then we will have a lot of trouble!" So the governor gave orders to close the tomb with a big stone. He sealed the stone and he posted some soldiers to guard the tomb.

That Saturday there was a big festival in Jerusalem and no one went to work, but early the Sunday morning Jesus' followers went to the tomb. They were very surprised to see that the big stone was rolled away. They went inside and saw that the body was gone -- only the cloth was there neatly rolled up. The guards did not know what happened.

That same day Jesus came and talked to his followers. They could not believe their own eyes! They were so happy to see Jesus alive! Jesus did not stay very long. He explained to his friends that his work is now finished and that it is time for him to go back to his Father. His followers then remembered that Jesus said that he would rise up from the dead after three days. They were very excited and they could not stop talking about what they saw.
